The No.1 "most terrifying film" as chosen by the people of Japan.

The "JU-ON" series at a pinnacle of horror finally concludes

Checking school records, she discovers him to be Toshio, a boy whose family was involved in a monstrous murder. Unknown to Mai, Toshio's aunt has adopted the orphaned Toshio and brought him into her home to live.

Despite her attempts to make Toshio welcome, she and her high-school-aged daughter Reo find themselves targeted for death by the boy. Meanwhile, Mai is hot on Toshio's trail, not knowing that Kayako has begun haunting her boyfriend Sota.

The ultimate horror comes to an end

Combining the eerie terror of Japanese horror films with Western horror films that utilise surprise elements of terror, the "Ju-On" series leads the Japanese horror film boom which started in the 90s along with "The Ring". Seven films and three overseas remakes have been released as theatrical versions in the past, all of which became blockbuster films. This film is the concluding chapter of this popular series.
